Dear Friends,

I'm delighted to be greeting you as the new Publishing Director of UQP.

In previous roles, it's been my privilege to have worked with UQP alumni, including Peter Carey, Tara June Winch and Siang Lu. I'm thrilled now to be at the source. Those writers have sought to describe the human experience in our part of the world in such a way it also speaks to readers in yours. UQP has been finding and nurturing exhilarating literary voices for almost eighty years; it's an honour to join the Press at a time when its unwavering mission and proud history have rarely felt more essential to our national culture.

It's also a time of great recent success', reflected in our rights: after winning the Miles Franklin Award, Siang Lu's Ghost Cities has been sold in 27 territories; in the wake of months of national headlines, Randa Abdel-Fattah's Discipline has also had notable rights sales; and in BCYA, Peter Carnavas's irresistible Kid has already started along the path of his Leo and Ralph (sold to nine territories so far) and The Elephant (sold in 18 territories).

The brilliant books in this catalogue almost exclusively reflect the work of my talented colleagues Madonna Duffy (now Director of UQP), Aviva Tuffield (fiction) and Cathy Vallance (children's and young adults). I look forward to adding some of my own authors at future fairs, and even seeing you to talk about them in person.

With all best,

Ben Ball

Dan Dixon

The Department

For readers of Rachel Cusk, Ben Lerner, Katie Kitamura and George Saunders – a surreal, thought-provoking novel full of absurdist humour examining the extremes of grief and the academy's frantic impulse for self-preservation.

A man shelters from torrential rain in a hotel across the road from the palliative care ward in which his father died just hours earlier. Trapped by flooding, he finds in progress a conference devoted to that most noble and pressing of pursuits: the reinvention of the humanities.

When word of his bereavement spreads, self-interested conferencegoers obsessed with professional rivalries and their own advancement see an opportunity and begin, by turns, to coerce him into delivering the closing keynote. Amid intellectual grandstanding and underhanded careerism, pressure mounts – and floodwaters continue to rise.

Set over twenty-four rain-soaked hours, The Department explores the tension between the experience and the performance of grief in a blazing satire of institutional decline, a send-up of self-satisfied corporate academia.

Dan Dixon is an Associate Lecturer in English and Writing at The University of Sydney, where he teaches English and creative writing. His work has been published in Meanjin, Sydney Review of Books, The Sydney Morning Herald, The Guardian, The Conversation, Overland, Australian Book Review and elsewhere. He was a Sydney Review of Books Emerging Critics Fellow and has been shortlisted for the Neilma Sidney Short Story Prize. The Department is his debut novel.

An unforgettable story of resistance, joy and homecomings.

In a time of overwhelming change, an Aboriginal family weathers settler and state violence to hold on to what's important. Wil is left to fend for themselves, until they're befriended by Nanna Essie's family. Remaining firmly on Country, Auntie Gwen brings mob together for healing. Pearlie escapes from a children's institution and devotes her life to helping other stolen children return home. Can a rebellious willy-willy help lead them all to freedom?

Spanning over 150 years, this beautifully woven historical saga follows Pearlie, Wil, Gwen and the generations around them as they protect family and Country. Whichway Shimmering Dust is a richly imagined work of truth-telling and a homage to members of the Stolen Generations.

Readers of Alexis Wright, Doris Garimara Pilkington and Kim Scott will adore this extraordinary novel and its fusing of truth-telling with speculative fiction.

There Is More Space

RRP AU$34.99

Category Fiction

Format C-format paperback, 224pp

A profound novel about one young woman's attempt at transformation by moving to an isolated Irish village and learning to live with – and after – loss.

From the award-winning author of The Sun Was Electric Light comes this beautifully written story about coming to terms with the light and darkness that we carry inside. Written with Rachel Morton's trademark sparse and meditative style, There Is More Space follows Rose, who has always felt like an outsider, as she tries to navigate her way through the shattering grief following the death of her partner.

Across time and space, we bear witness to Rose's struggle to rediscover herself in the wake of deep loss. Set between Australia and Ireland, this is a novel about finding and losing love, the search for connection and belonging, and learning to live with yourself even when you've lost the desire to do so.

Rachel Morton is a special writer whose work defies categorisation. Her plangent, meditative style belies the urgency of the issues that her characters are wrestling with. She writes about outsiders who are trying to find a home in the world, while showing us that we are all outsiders in some ways – that feels reassuring.

Aviva Tuffield, Publisher

Rachel Morton is a writer living on Eastern Maar/Gunditjmara Country in south-west Victoria. Her poetry has appeared in Meanjin Quarterly, The Moth Magazine and various other publications. Rachel was shortlisted for the 2019 Australian Catholic University Prize for Poetry. The Sun Was Electric Light was her first novel and won the 2024 Victorian Premier's Literary Award for an Unpublished Manuscript.

Adam Thompson proved his talents with his debut collection, Born into This, which won The US Story Prize Spotlight Award (for debuts). His razor-sharp insights into First Nations identity and cultural appropriation, as well as the exploitation of Country, are honed to perfection in his latest book.

Aviva Tuffield, Publisher

From an award-winning Indigenous short story writer comes a blazing new collection that riffs on questions of identity and race, environmental and cultural destruction, all with his trademark sly humour and his flair for the unexpected.

In his second collection of stories, Adam Thompson provides honest, humorous and often-raw insights into the experiences of living in Tasmania. From a young boy fighting for the life of his horse on isolated Flinders Island to a protestor revising an engraving at a famous tourist landmark, to a young woman taking a stand against developers on a local beach, Organ Grinder covers themes of family, activism, colonialism, heritage, environment, intimacy and identity.

Adam Thompson is an emerging Aboriginal (pakana) writer from Tasmania, who writes contemporary short fiction. In 2016–17, Adam received writing awards through the Tamar Valley Writers Festival and the Tasmanian Writers and Readers Festival. Adam has been awarded a First Nations Fellowship at Varuna, several Arts Tasmania grants, and was one of ten recipients of The Next Chapter initiative through the Wheeler Centre. His debut collection Born Into This was shortlisted for the USQ Steele Rudd Award for a Short Story Collection and the 2021 Age Book of the Year Award.

In the style of the school of alienated autofiction – think Ottessa Moshfegh and Ben Lerner – comes this impressive debut novel, with its self-aware, slightly unhinged narrator who has to decide what is real and what is fiction and where to draw the lines.

Aviva Tuffield, Publisher

A novel about what we are willing to sacrifice for ambition, and the competitive jealousy that can underlie female friendships.

Madeline is a writer who is struggling to write and searching for a cure to whatever is preventing her from doing so. She is on the verge of failing out of her prestigious creative writing program at the University of Oxford. She is short of money, short of inspiration and short of time to keep her life together.

When she meets the beautiful and enigmatic Francesca at a party, Madeline has a glimmer of hope – and something, or someone, worth writing about. But as she moves deeper into obsession, both with the real Francesca and her fictional portrayal, she has to decide what really matters in her life and the costs of getting it wrong.

Em Meller lives and works in Sydney, on the unceded lands of the Gadigal people. Her fiction has been published in Meanjin, Debris, Prism and The Big Issue. She also writes essays and reviews, which have appeared in Meanjin, Kill Your Darlings, The Lifted Brow, Going Down Swinging and other places. In 2019 she received her MSt in Creative Writing from St Catherine's College, Oxford University. Her unpublished manuscript was shortlisted for the 2024 Vogel Prize.

Tom Vowles is one of the most exciting and imaginatively talented young writers working in Australia right now. With We Were Bodies he continues his creative delving into the nature of desire, the dangers of erotic attraction and the limits of trust, all with a thrilling queer bent.

Aviva Tuffield, Publisher

A haunting, unsettling work of queer gothic horror that asks: what is the ultimate form of possession of another person?

After a chance encounter, Gabriel finds himself drawn towards the enigmatic Felix, even after discovering that he's responsible for the murder – and cannibalism – of a young man at the cruising site where they first met. Wishing to honour the victim, who he insists was his friend, Felix recruits Gabriel and his writer housemate, Sid, into a destabilising reenactment of the events that lead up to the murder.

What follows is a strange and exhilarating story that traps Gabriel in a nightmare of spiritual forces as, almost against his conscious will, he finds himself surrendering to the horror and ecstasy of the extremes that Felix comes to embody and the existential question he represents: why do some people have a taste for desire?

Thomas Vowles lives in Naarm/Melbourne. As a screenwriter, he's worked with production companies based in Los Angeles, London and Australia. He released a collection of short stories as an episodic zine, and is a graduate of Central Film School, London, and the Faber Academy. Our New Gods was his debut novel.

The brilliantly bonkers new book from the author of Big Time.

Abby always believed she was destined for great things. But her dream career as an industry-disrupting fashion designer went up in smoke, and her aspirations to become a world-renowned yogi and/or save the endangered tigers proved equally fruitless. She's in her early thirties, suffering the unbearable burdens of adulthood and anonymity, when she wakes up after a drunken bender with an all-new, all-consuming purpose in life: to be the first person on Mars.

Perfect timing – Danish tech entrepreneur Tor Skovgaard is currently recruiting for a one-way mission to colonise the red planet. Abby knows this is it: her last-ditch bid for fame and glory. And if she can't be humanity's saviour ... she'll settle for being its martyr.

Blue Giant is an unruly eulogy for millennial optimism – a deranged love letter to a generation torn between helplessness and selfishness.

Jordan Prosser is an author and screenwriter based in Naarm/Melbourne. He won the Peter Carey Short Story Award in 2022. His debut novel, Big Time, was shortlisted for the Matt Richell Award for New Writer of the Year at the ABIA's and the Aurealis Award for Best Science Fiction Novel.

JORDAN PROSSER

Jordan Prosser writes with savage wit and startling tenderness. Blue Giant skewers tech-utopian salvation stories while never losing sight of the messy, bruised people caught in the blast radius. A blistering send-up of billionaires, media spectacle and the cult of reinvention, with an emotional core that lands hard. I tore through Blue Giant and kept thinking about it long after the last page.

Sami Shah

Blue Giant is an intoxicating trip, elegantly consumed with the idea that there's something better for us out there, somewhere, if we could only escape ourselves. Jordan Prosser draws friendship, in all its romance and misery, so authentically that it sometimes sucks the air from your chest.

Sinéad Stubbins

Jordan Prosser has rendered a triumphant fantasy of the human race, where the people around us are so specific and vivid that you just want to leave them all behind. Blue Giant is beautiful and bitter, powered by vinegar but very much lit by the stars. And Abby Horne is a heroine for the ages, but especially our degraded age, and I for one would follow her to Mars.

Ronnie Scott

Savagely precise and shockingly funny, Blue Giant captures the absurdity, brutality and sheer banality of life on a world on the brink better than anything I've ever read. This book is destined to be one of the definitive millennial novels.'

Sarah Walker

Blue Giant is a paean to millennial ennui, manic delusion and the destructive false promises of the capitalist machine. Brimming with satire and glorious trainwreck characters, Jordan Prosser has knocked it out of the park, straight into the stratosphere.

A Short History of Longans

From the award-winning, bestselling author of Stone Sky Gold Mountain comes the story of an Irish-Chinese family over four generations in Australia.

'They said you were a murdering bushranger.'

It's the winter of 2049 and Daniel is elderly and long isolated. After yet another devastating storm, this time destroying his beloved longan tree, he finds his fragile peace threatened by a growing friendship with a widowed neighbour and the appearance of a young reporter digging into a shameful event buried deep in his past.

Across the autumn of 2000, the summer of 1949 and the restless springs of the mid-nineteenth century, the tangled roots of Daniel's family tree unfurl – to the moment an Irish orphan finds her fate entwined with that of a Chinese bushranger.

Intriguing and beautifully written, this dazzling novel spanning centuries and generations unravels the secrets and memories of one family to explore what it means to belong – to place, to ancestors, to ourselves.

People Like Us

Brave, compassionate and humorous, People Like Us is a novel about the very best kind of friendships.

After Tina Lamb loses her family home in a bitter divorce, she finds herself living in a caravan on the city's fringes. Having raised four children and nursed her dying mum, she was not anticipating making a new start alone or from scratch. And while some of her new neighbours are welcoming, she soon finds herself getting far more attention than she bargained for.

When Tina finds work caring for a wealthy elderly woman, it is a welcome break from an ageist, sexist job market. But Mrs Bell is anything but predictable. Highly educated, acerbic and intimidating, she is not the straightforward charge that Tina had hoped for. As the two women form an unlikely friendship, they soon discover that financial security is about more than having money.

Topical and absorbing, People Like Us celebrates the power of female friendships and the promise of new beginnings found in unexpected places.

Bernhard Schlink

of the world.

When a desperate young man arrives on an isolated Scottish isle, the locals view him with suspicion. But Niko is there for a reason – he’s running for his life, pursued by those who want him silenced for what he has seen in the Balkan War. His neighbour is a recluse known to the villagers as ‘Slow Fergus’. As the two men circle each other, Australian war crimes investigator Anita Costello races against sinister forces to locate her key witness.

Against this rugged landscape, where the tight-knit island community holds painful memories close, Niko must weigh his loyalties to his family, his country and himself.

Written with compassion and insight, Two Islands explores how the ripples of distant conflicts can wash up on the most remote shores.

Ian Kemish AM is a former Australian diplomat who served as ambassador to Germany, high commissioner to Papua New Guinea, international adviser to the Prime Minister, and head of the consular and crisis management service. He was appointed a Member of the Order of Australia in recognition of his leadership of the emergency response to the 2002 Bali bombings. Ian’s first book, The Consul (2022), offered a personal perspective on Australia’s foreign affairs challenges over two decades – spanning hostage diplomacy, natural disasters and evacuations from war zones.

For readers of Robert Harris and Anna Funder, After the Thunder unspools a fifty-year-old secret of identity, loyalty and redemption, wound during the first battle of the Cold War, the Berlin Airlift.

Berlin, 1948. The Soviet blockade is tightening as the Western allies mount an airlift to keep the city alive. Thousands of displaced people scramble for a future. One of them is Elena, a Latvian woman, carrying a secret.

Now she makes a dangerous decision. She will run. Fifty years later, Australian diplomat Julian Thomson discovers a family mystery following the death of his father, W.B. “Bill” Thomson – a towering figure of postwar diplomacy and lifelong advocate for the eastern European refugees whose arrival shaped his country. Delving into his father’s wartime years in Berlin, with the reluctant help of a retired British journalist, Julian sets out to uncover the truth about his father, the mysterious Elena and the unnumbered refugees trapped by history.

After The Thunder is a story of secrets carried across generations, lives suspended between nations, and choices made in the shadows of history that echo decades later.

From the award-winning author of The Sitter and Night Blue comes another mesmerising novel – told, in part, by a book.

Before Isabel has even cracked the spine of a novel she bought on a whim ahead of an overseas trip, she senses something beginning within her. From Sydney to London and back again, the book is a quiet observer. When it's left in an airport taxi and Isabel's boyfriend takes it home, the book begins to learn about him – about his family and his past. Soon, it begins to understand: Isabel is not safe.

Angela O'Keeffe is the master of voice, and Phantom Days is a marvel: eerie, elegant and unforgettable. With O'Keeffe's signature emotional depth and narrative quirkiness, this novel explores the unknowability of other people, the mysteries of the body and the strange ways stories shape, complicate and safeguard our lives.

Emily Lighezzolo Life Drawing

An award-winning and provocative novel about women's bodies, sex, autonomy – and the power of the image.

Hypothetically, would you want to live forever but invisible, or a short life seen?

Hypothetically, would you give up wine forever or sex for ten years?

Hypothetically, would you show a friend someone else's nude?

Maisie and Charlie meet at a life-drawing session as undergraduates: she's the model, he's an artist. Their immediate connection carries them across two decades as they navigate the slippery dynamics of friendship, estrangement and family.

Maisie's story is every woman's, and Emily Lighezzolo's bold debut interrogates the collision of art and gaze, desire and consent, muse and meaning. This is a love story. At its core: a woman's body – seen, touched, loved, hated, commodified and reclaimed. Life Drawing is an award-winning and unflinching novel for our times.

Emily Lighezzolo has worked in Australian publishing for nearly a decade. Life Drawing won the Glendower Award for an Emerging Queensland Writer at the Queensland Literary Awards and is her first book. She lives in Meanjin/Brisbane.

A gem of a debut novel by award-winning playwright George Kemp, about small-town lives and the search for genuine sustenance in a fast-food world.

Stuck in a regional McDonald's, as bushfires close in, three twenty-somethings and their dead friend's mum all face a reckoning. Fern longs for Ethan, Ethan longs for Jacob, and Jacob struggles to long for anything. Meanwhile, Pat just wants her grief to ease up.

Soft Serve proves that small-town lives are huge, and that anyone can get stuck in limbo between their past and their hoped-for future. From celebrated playwright and actor George Kemp comes this charming and poignant novel: it's drive-thru Chekhov ... full of wit and heart.

George Kemp is based on Gadigal land in Sydney. He was selected to be part of the Faber Academy in 2023–24, during which he completed the first draft of Soft Serve. His award-winning play Shack has been performed frequently around the country and internationally, and is included on the new NSW Drama Curriculum. First Name Second Name is the quintessential Australian novel – a stunningly complex and intelligent portrait of who we are now and who we are destined to become.

Michael Mohammed Ahmad

In this darkly ironic novel, a dead man walks back through four generations of family estrangements to recover his lost identity.

The journey will be long and difficult, one thousand miles. Try not to be too obvious. Stick to the backroads. You'll know you've arrived when you get there.

Stephen Bolin leaves a bizarre note by his deathbed, asking his sisters to take his body back to his birthplace in Far North Queensland. When they ignore his request, Stephen's corpse makes the nocturnal pilgrimage alone. But what is compelling him and what will he find there?

His journey, as a kind of jiangshi, takes him back through his turbulent family history: from his Chinese great-grandfather's life on the goldfields in 1860s Queensland, to his Scottish grandparents' migration to Australia as ten-pound Poms, and to his own coming of age and coming out in Brisbane and London.

Original and satirical, First Name Second Name follows four generations of one family through a reckoning with racial, familial and sexual identity.

Steve MinOn grew up in North Queensland, and he now lives on Turrbal land in Magandjin/Brisbane. Steve's debut novel First Name Second Name (UQP 2025) was shortlisted for the 2026 Miles Franklin Literary Award, won the Glendower Award for an Emerging Queensland Writer and was shortlisted for People's Choice at the Queensland Literary Awards. Randa Abdel-Fattah Discipline

Silence is complicity, but how do we confront the cost of speaking up?

Sydney, May 2021. Ashraf is an academic whose career and personal life are in freefall. Hannah is a young journalist struggling to honour the voices of her community. When a Year 12 student from a local Islamic college is arrested for protesting a university's ties to an Israeli weapons manufacturer, Ashraf sees an opportunity to exploit his personal connection to the situation for professional redemption. Meanwhile Hannah, who is juggling the demands of new motherhood and family trauma, fights racism in the newsroom. As Israel's bombardment of Gaza intensifies into the final weeks of Ramadan, Ashraf and Hannah must reckon with their choices, values and places in their communities. Will they be prepared to make sacrifices in the pursuit of what is right?

With a focus on two of today's most contested fields, academia and the media, Discipline tallies the price we all pay when those with privilege choose to remain silent.

Alex Koefman

Head Case:
What nobody tells you about becoming a brain surgeon

A brilliant and absorbing medical memoir from neurosurgeon Dr Alex Koefman that uncovers the motivations and mysteries of our brains.

Raised on a farm in rural Tasmania, Alex Koefman never fit the mould of the future neurosurgeon. He didn't even get accepted into medicine on his first try. When he finally found his way in, he discovered the real battle was just beginning. What follows is a relentless, funny and deeply personal journey through one of the toughest medical specialties.

Alex hustles his way audaciously into a world where the stakes are life and death, and the learning curve is near vertical. Along the way, he reveals the hidden dramas of the operating room, the strange and wondrous mysteries of the brain, and the personal cost of a career built on precision, endurance and compassion.

Funny, heartbreaking and profound, Head Case reminds us that even in the most complex corners of medicine, humanity is the one skill no one can teach.

Dr Alex Koefman is a Brisbane-based neurosurgeon, a retired drummer in a band once unearthed by Triple J and a lapsed cricketer.

Suri Matondkar
Cheatercock

‘It’s true, na. I’m just another Kipling-inspired beast, the skin of a jaguar, full jungli but filled with words that don’t match my place of manufacturing.’

As a child in Goa, Suri Matondkar fell in love with the rhythms and writers of the English language. Coming to Australia as an international student, the proficiency tests she was set – both formal and informal – are the starting point for this thrillingly innovative and intimate exploration of how language can be owned and ultimately subverted.

Blending sharp critique and candid memoir, Cheatercock is many things: a wry tour of the breezy, exploitative bureaucracy governing the immigrant’s radically precarious life; a deeply insightful consideration of English as a means of control; and a highly personal exploration of the ways that language enables – or confines – our emotions and ultimately our identity.

Pulsating with life, intelligence, anger and humour, Cheatercock above all is a celebration of the hybrid and the multiple above the correct and the pure.

Suri Matondkar is a writer interested in language and identity. Cheatercock won one of two UQP Mentorship Prizes for Under-represented Writers in 2025, amongst other awards. Her writing appears in Roxane Gay’s Emerging Writer Series, Island, Cordite and Kill Your Darlings. She likes stickers, socks and Taylor Swift.

Cheatercock calls to mind the work of Aravind Adiga, Nam Le, Sarah Malik and Michelle de Kretser – a searing, funny, revealing challenge to our assumptions about who controls language, to what end and at what cost. It introduces a razor-sharp and endlessly readable literary intelligence.

The Sky Is Concave is at once a woman's tale as old as time and a story of absolute political currency and specificity, written by a fresh and fearless new voice. Simply breathtaking.

Clare Wright

A memoir of strength, the power of education and the universal language of mathematics.

Born near Nazareth as a Palestinian citizen of Israel, Majeda Awawdeh learns early the limits imposed on her body, voice and dreams. After marrying at just seventeen to escape a stifling home life and continue her education, Majeda finds herself shouldering the double burden of occupation and patriarchy in another kind of prison. Armed only with determination, love for her three young children and passion for learning, she begins to redraw the boundaries of her reality.

In The Sky Is Concave, Majeda recounts her journey through a childhood shaped by civil discrimination and rising religious conservatism to hard-won intellectual, financial and personal freedom.

Written with fierce, poetic honesty, The Sky Is Concave is a testament to courage and reinvention. It is an unforgettable story of daring to question the limits of your world and reshaping your own sky.

Dr Majeda Awawdeh is an academic, entrepreneur and advocate for women's education based in Sydney, Australia. As one of two million Palestinians with Israeli citizenship living under occupation, her early life was shaped by patriarchy, civil discrimination, Islamic conservatism and the complex realities of being a Palestinian citizen of Israel. Majeda holds a bachelor's degree in Mathematics, a master's in Mathematics Education, and a PhD in Mathematics Education and Cognitive Load Theory.

A terrific book, wise and passionate, offering a roadmap towards a larger justice.

Kate Grenville

A revelatory exploration of how law and lore can co-exist, from the bestselling author of After Story.

Larissa Behrendt has had an extraordinary career as a legal academic, author and filmmaker that has allowed her to move between courtrooms and Country to explore what real justice means, and what it might yet become.

In this groundbreaking work that is part philosophical meditation and part historical reckoning, Behrendt weaves together personal reflection, Indigenous knowledge and decades of legal experience to illuminate a deeper truth about Australia: that more than one way of understanding law, justice and responsibility has always existed.

With quiet authority, Behrendt considers how First Nations' Practices of Sovereignty – grounded in self-determination, reciprocity and collective care – have succeeded within communities.

Clear-eyed, thoughtful and ultimately hopeful, Finding Justice is a profound invitation to rethink power and policy, expand our understanding of justice, and achieve genuine transformation.

Larissa Behrendt is the author of three novels: Home, which won the David Unaipon Award and the regional Commonwealth Writers' Prize for Best First Book; Legacy, which won the Victorian Premier's Literary Award for Indigenous Writing; and After Story, shortlisted for the Indigenous Writers' Prize at the NSW Premier's Literary Award, and longlisted for the Miles Franklin Literary Award.

Tim Loveday your father was a bastard

your father was a bastard is a devastating interrogation of masculinity, class and precarity. These poems recount stories, both archetypal and particular, of how violence can shadow and permeate a family, and how those affected adapt to its presence and its threats. Tim Loveday's collection is distinguished both by its use of long-form narrative poetry and its focus on the male child's experience of domestic violence. He faces up to the legacies of gendered violence from the inside with bravery, associative insight and formal ingenuity, all the while showing us how things, in spite of everything, might be different in the future.

The scorching, much-anticipated new book from the winner of the 2022 Stella Prize for Dropbear.

It's not that you think you can change this, but you need something to do with your hands.

The Rot is a recalcitrant study of the decaying romances, expired hopes and abject injustices of the world. A liturgy for girlhood in the dying days of late-stage capitalism, these poems expose fraying nerves and tendons of a speaker refusing to avert their gaze from the death of Country, death on Country, and the bloody violence of settler colonies here and afar.

Across sleepless nights, fractured alliances and self-destructive coping strategies, The Rot is what happens when poetry swallows more rage than it can console, quiet or ironise – this book demands you ready yourself for a better world.

Sandy Bigna Little Bones

A unique and lyrical verse novel for middle-grade readers that speaks to our childhood joy of collecting small, intriguing objects and creating connections in the most unlikely places.

Since the accident, eleven-year-old Bones spends her time drawing animal skeletons and scavenging for dead things to add to her collection. She's drifted away from her friends and doesn't want to make new ones.

One night, Bones wishes on a full moon and unintentionally resurrects the skeleton of a baby bird. Bird wants to return to his natural (dead) state, so Bones agrees to reverse the curse – not that she knows how. As she and Bird work out the secrets of the magic, Bones remembers what it's like to have a friend. How can she let Bird go when she doesn't want to say goodbye?

With gorgeous greyscale illustrations by Tamlyn Teow of Bones's collected items scattered throughout, this book is perfect for big-hearted readers of Karen Foxlee and Zana Fraillon.

THE FOOD SYSTEM

The food system is everything that happens to food, from how it's grown to how it's moved and then how we eat it.

Understanding this system helps us to be aware of where our food comes from and how it's processed and packaged. We can then make more planet-friendly choices about what we eat.

FOOD GLORIOUS FOOD

Although there are a huge number of edible species worldwide, only a few make up the modern diet. Rice, corn and wheat are the most commonly farmed crops, accounting for more than half of global food intake. Key food groups include: grains, roots and tubers; vegetables; fruits; beans and legumes; and animal products like meat and dairy.

FARMING'S SUPER SOLUTIONS

Regenerative farming offers solutions to the climate challenges facing our world. Regeneration means renewal, restoration and revival – a process of healing and making better.

This special type of farming produces nutritious food and looks after the environment at the same time. If we don't take care of soil, water and plants, the land and animals will struggle, and so will we. Regenerative farmers look after ecosystems that grow food by planting different crops and trying not to disturb the soil too much. They also take care of rivers, lakes and dams, making sure they don't waste or pollute water. They encourage pollinators like bees to come to their farms, and they also protect habitats for native wildlife.

Healthier ecosystems make farms better at growing food, even during tough times like heatwaves, heavy rainfall or drought. When food ecosystems are vibrant and strong, crops and livestock grow quickly. Regenerative farming also helps fight climate change by sucking carbon dioxide out of the air and storing this carbon in farm soils.

NATURE'S SUPERMARKET

Although most of our food comes from farms, food is also found in the natural world all around us. Forests grow nuts, berries and mushrooms, while rivers, lakes and oceans have fish, shrimp and seaweed. First Nations Australians have been caring for Country and have accessed nature's delicious bounty for tens of thousands of years and still do today. Looking after land and water ecosystems that grow food is essential for our health and the future of our planet.

Your turn!

Select some yummy food to eat from nature's supermarket. You could try catching a fish or harvesting native raspberries with an adult. Wild food is all around us if we look closely!

Based on the author's treasured childhood memories of attending the Harbin Ice and Snow Festival in China, this bilingual picture book is a spectacular celebration of family, cultural traditions and wintertime splendour.

Every year, Grandpa takes us to the Festival of Ice and Snow – and every year, I can't wait!

Two children and their beloved grandpa experience the wonder of Harbin's Ice and Snow World, an enchanting place filled with super slides, tasty treats and huge ice sculptures illuminated by multicoloured lights.

Told in English and simplified Chinese, this picture book captures the fun of the winter festival and spending time with loved ones.

Angie Cui, originally from China, embarked on her Australian journey at eighteen. She lives in Melbourne with her husband and two children, whom she calls the 'ABC Family' – a fusion of four individuals and three cultures. Imbued with a profound appreciation for the linguistic richness within her family, Angie finds delight in weaving tales through various languages.

Anna Wilson was born in Australia's Snowy Mountains, spent her childhood moving houses and schools, and then spent most of her adult life travelling the world. She is inspired by people and places and studied and worked with these concepts for a long time before embarking on a new career as a freelance designer and illustrator. She has illustrated children's books for Bloomsbury, Hachette UK, Little Tiger & Cameron Kids Books.

Joey and the Junjardy

A funny, raucous middle-grade romp grounded in First Nations storytelling, featuring a mischievous character brought to life by debut author Allison Rocca.

Joey Gibbs is always up for a laugh. What isn't funny: the 'Big Trouble' he caused at his old school that meant his family had to move back home to Coolibah Creek. Joey's going to keep his head down this time. New school, new mates, new start. But trouble seems to have a way of finding him.

When his sister and cousin start getting mysteriously pranked, Joey looks for answers from his Wakka Wakka culture. He discovers he's caught the attention of the Junjardy, a hairy little trickster. Joey can't resist making mischief again with his secret partner in crime. But as the jokes spiral out of control, he must work out what the Junjardy wants with him before disaster strikes.

Action-packed with loads of humour and heart, Joey and the Junjardy shows us how the smallest of creatures can help you to stand tall and proud.

Allison Rocca is a primary school teacher who has taught in classrooms from the 'burbs of Australia, to remote villages in Asia and Hogwarts-like academies in Oxford. She is a descendant of Wakka Wakka and Kaanju people and her upbringing was rich in storytelling. She lives and writes on Yuggera/Turrbal Country, Brisbane.

Brenton E McKenna is a Yawuru artist and writer from Broome. When he's not drawing, Brenton dedicates his time to educating young people through creative storytelling workshops.

Peter Carnavas
Kid

A modern-day classic about a young goat who discovers the meaning of family, in a limited edition deluxe hardcover. Written and illustrated by Peter Carnavas, bestselling author of Leo and Ralph.

This is the story of a small goat called Kid. Ever since his parents chased away a fox and never returned, Kid has stayed with Audrey the hen in the chook yard. Audrey tells him stories of his mum and dad's daring and bravery. She says they live on the nearby mountain, and Kid longs to leave the farm to find them.

And then, one day, he discovers he is big enough to jump the fence ...

Will a wild adventure up the mountain help Kid find where he belongs?

Embellished with Peter's delightful hand-drawn illustrations, this junior adventure novel is reminiscent of other children's classics that feature mostly animal casts, such as Charlotte's Web by EB White and The Sheep-Pig by Dick King-Smith.

Carnavas is a wonderful, warm-hearted writer, and manages to filter every nugget of philosophy through the eyes of his child narrator.

The Telegraph

From award-winning storyteller Peter Carnavas comes this stellar novel about space, starting over and the best friend you could ever imagine.

Ralph sat up. His voice was croaky. 'If a shooting star zoomed past right now, what would you wish for?'

'To find another friend like you.'

Leo and Ralph have been best friends ever since Ralph flew down from one of Jupiter's moons. But now Leo's older, and Mum and Dad think it's time to say goodbye to Ralph. When the family moves to a small country town, they hope Leo might finally make a real friend. But someone like Ralph is hard to leave behind...

Perfect for kids who enjoy gentle, thoughtful stories like The Wild Robot by Peter Brown and the Polly and Buster series by Sally Rippin.

Peter Carnavas writes and illustrates books for children. His books have been published widely across the world and have won many awards, including a Queensland Literary Award and the Patricia Wrightson Prize for Children's Literature at the NSW Premier's Literary Awards. Peter lives on the Sunshine Coast, Queensland, with his wife, two daughters, a dog and a cat.

Brutal, brave, beautiful – a gripping story of adventure, escape and queer love.

Lili Wilkinson

A gripping historical YA thriller, with a dash of queer romance. Think the bushranger version of Fingersmith by Sarah Waters.

1899, Fremantle Asylum, Western Australia. For three years now, Gilberta Brady has kept quiet and stayed out of trouble, hoping to soon be released. But when Norah Devaney screams into the ward with revenge in her heart and a story no-one believes, Brady's carefully guarded peace is shattered.

On the run and out of options, they collide with Kedalak and Malkar, Nyungar brothers on their own journey home. They form an unlikely gang of bushrangers and embark on a dangerous mission: track down the man who killed Norah's mum.

But little do they know that the Whistling Man is hunting them too.

Meg Caddy is a West Australian YA novelist with three published novels. Meg started their first novel, a standalone YA fantasy titled Waer, when they were just fourteen, and Waer was acquired by Text Publishing after being shortlisted for the Text Prize in 2013. In 2017, Waer was also shortlisted for the CBCA Book of the Year Award. Their second novel, Devil's Ballast, was longlisted for the CBCA Book of the Year Award and shortlisted for the Readings Young Adult Book Prize (2020). The sequel Slipping the Noose was also longlisted for both the CBCA Book of the Year Award (2023) and the ARA Historical Novel Prize (2022).

Zana Fraillon Song of a Thousand Seas

A lyrical verse novel of homecoming and friendship by Zana Fraillon, the multi-award-winning author of The Bone Sparrow and The Way of Dog.

All day long we can hear that Sea howl prowling wild to feel it taste it twirl it whirl it swirl it inside our body again.

Houdini the octopus lives in an aquarium, but she misses her home in the wild Sea. She doesn't like the visitors who bang on her tank. Or the way she can't feel the sun on her skin or the wind rippling the water. It's a dull existence for a creature with nine brains.

Then one day she meets someone who is different to the other visitors. Juno's busy brain buzzes with so many questions and thoughts that Houdini's skin tingles with wonder.

But the singing of the Sea is growing stronger and harder to resist. Can Houdini make Juno understand what she needs before it's too late?

Zana Fraillon is an internationally acclaimed, multi-award-winning author of books for children and young adults. Her work has been published in over fifteen countries and is in development for both stage and screen. They have a doctorate in creative writing, and degrees in history and teaching. Zana's passion for empowering young people to find their voice is a feature of both her books and her work with writers of all ages.

Getting your first phone is a big moment – this illustrated guide empowers young people aged 9–13 to navigate the online world with awareness, responsibility and confidence.

The internet is one of the most life-changing inventions in history. But there are things happening behind the screens that are changing how we behave: influencing what we buy, what we're interested in and how long we stay online. As we start using the internet and AI to do everything, it's helpful to explore how the tech is using us a little too.

Written by award-winning scientist Dr Niraj (Nij) Lal, host of the ABC's kids' podcast Imagine This, and illustrated by comic artist Aśka, Behind the Screens is the must-have guide to help young people be online in the best way possible.

Dr Niraj (Nij) Lal is an ANU Visiting Fellow and host of the ABC's kids' podcast Imagine This. He graduated from the University of Cambridge with a PhD in physics as a Gates Scholar in 2012, and his awards include the 2021 Celestino Eureka Prize for Promoting Understanding of Science and the 2022 Royal Societies of Australia and New Zealand Piasecki Prize for Outstanding Writing on Social Change. He lives in Melbourne with his partner Sally and their three kids.

Aśka (pronounced Ash-ka) is creative dynamite, an award-winning graphic novelist, an ex-quantum physicist, and a hugely engaging and popular presenter. Having published more than a dozen books and comics, Aśka is passionate about visual literacy and teaching people how to 'write with pictures'. Fun fact: despite being a fan of technology, to this day Aśka has never owned a smart phone. She thinks everyone should read this book!
